

The Research Observatory

Explicit copyright and image rights statement

Text

The copyright in the text and non-photographic design elements of the Research Observatory (RO) is owned by the University of the West of England, Bristol, (the University), except in the case of cited text from other works, or except where otherwise stated on the relevant page.

Photographic images

The majority of still photographic images used in the RO are not the copyright of the University. The images are either free of copyright restrictions for educational use (e.g. NASA) or are reproduced under the terms of Creative Commons or GNU Free Documentation licences, such as in Wikimedia Commons. To save space and to avoid repetition, copyright statements do not appear on every page where a permitted photographic image is used. In the small number of cases where the copyright is owned by a third person and permission has been granted to use the image, full credit has been given on the relevant page. Likewise, in the small number of cases where the copyright of an image does belong to the University, this is stated on the relevant page.

Other media

The copyright of other media used in the RO belongs to the University, unless otherwise stated.

Moral rights

Notwithstanding the copyright ownership by the University, the authors of the RO assert their moral rights to be identified as authors.
